Working with Battered Immigrants – FREE Workshop
April 30th, 2008
2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.
Marianna Black Library
33 Fryemont Street, Bryson City

The 30th Judicial District Alliance will be hosting a "Working with Battered Immigrants workshop" in Bryson City, NC. This workshop will cover the basics about working with Hispanic Families and victims of abuse. The workshop targets service providers who work or will work with Latinos in their human service organizations.

This highly interactive workshop will provide an overview of the cultural characteristics of Hispanics in North Carolina, along with specific strategies for improving organizational capacity to serve this fast growing population.

Seminar content will include:

- * A general over view of the barriers to seeking safety, and how the victims experience the judicial system.
- * Immigration remedies for battered immigrants and an overview of Immigrant eligibility for federal funded programs.
- * A general review of why many Hispanics to come to North Carolina, and the consequences of their arrival.
- * An overview of the major cultural and communication issues that often impede the delivery of services to this population.
- * Strategies for developing effective outreach training of staff and volunteers and improving your organizational capacity to serve Hispanic clients.

If someone in your organization can benefit from this introductory level seminar, space is limited, so please contact our offices to reserve your spot.
